ChatGPT response: Sure, here are ten questions on sustainability that you could include in your global hotel RFP:

1. What sustainability initiatives have your hotel implemented to reduce its carbon footprint?
2. Can you provide examples of how your hotel has reduced its energy and water consumption?
3. Does your hotel have a recycling program in place? If so, can you provide details on how it operates?
4. What sustainable transportation options are available near your hotel, such as bike rentals or public transit?
5. Does your hotel offer sustainable food and beverage options, such as locally sourced and organic products?
6. How does your hotel support local communities and reduce negative impacts on the environment?
7. What certifications or accreditations has your hotel received for its sustainability efforts?
8. Can you provide data on your hotel's waste reduction and diversion rates?
9. Does your hotel have a sustainability-focused training program for its staff?
10. How does your hotel encourage guests to participate in sustainable practices during their stay, such as towel and linen reuse programs?

Including these questions in your RFP will help ensure that sustainability is a top priority when selecting hotels for your company's transient travel program.
