THE BEAUTY OF BIMINI, BAHAMAS

Just 50 miles off the coast of Florida, the islands of Bimini are known as The Gateway to The Bahamas. Bimini consists of two main islands—North Bimini and South Bimini, as well as numerous cays, all rich in history and culture. These mystical islands have been gaining the attention of world travelers for centuries. According to tradition, the natives of Hispaniola, Puerto Rico and Cuba told the early Spanish explorers that in Bimini or Beniny as it was known, there was a river, spring or fountain where miraculously curative waters could cause the aged who bathed in them to regain their youth. Juan Ponce de Leon who had been with Columbus on his second voyage in 1493 is supposed to have learned of the fable from the Indians and unsuccessfully tried to find the mythical Fountain of Youth in 1513.

A STORIED HISTORY:

With its close proximity to the United States, it's no surprise that Bimini was a favorite haven and supply point for the rum-running trade during the prohibition era in American history. In the 1930's, Bimini was Ernest Hemingway's favorite escape, and served as his source of inspiration for his books Islands in the Stream and The Old Man At Sea

Other notables who found solace here include Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. who was in Bimini when he wrote parts of his acceptance speech for his Nobel Peace Prize in 1964. In 1968 also while in Bimini, he wrote his sanitation workers speech and his own eulogy, just days before his assassination. Other notables affiliated with the island include Marjorie Rawlings, Adam Clayton Powell, the Duke of Windsor, Anthony Hopkins, Sammy Davis Jr, Johnny Cash and others.

Today, visitors from around the world continue to enjoy Bimini's complex and renowned past, including the mysterious Bimini Road discovered in 1968 off the coast of North Bimini. Many believe that this stretch of neatly arranged 300-foot long limestone blocks, estimated to be between 5,000 and 10,000 years old, once served as a road to the Lost City of Atlantis.
